An essay is a small written work, where the author in a free manner expresses his thoughts about some actual problem, substantiating his vision of its essence. Based on the distinguishing features of evaluating an essay, we can say that the purpose is to express the opinion about something. The structure of the essay indicates that this opinion must certainly be confirmed. The text of the entry does not indicate goals or objectives. You should understand the essay, write it, then define them for yourself. Tasks are certain stages of work to reveal their vision of the situation. In case you do not know how to write an essay you can use essay for sale service. In order to fully disclose the topic, its relevance is analyzed so that the author can create his own understanding of what is happening, the manifestation of the problem is studied at the theoretical and practical levels, new, out-of-the-box solutions are sought. Thus, defining the goals and objectives of the essay, we can say that the meaning of his writing is the substantiation of his own vision of the essence, the ways of solving some specific problem. Traditionally, the volume ranges from two to seven pages. This leads to such features of the design of the text and presentation of the material, such as the absence of a plan, division into chapters, removal of the introduction or conclusions to work on a separate page.

The structure

In the introduction analyzes the relevance of the issue under consideration, outlines the main problem, the importance of its solution.

The main part contains an analysis of the essence of the problem, its manifestation at the practical and theoretical levels, confirmed by arguments.

The conclusion describes the vision of the situation through the eyes of the author, the ways in which he can solve the problem.

Due to the small amount of work it is impossible to analyze many aspects of the phenomenon under study. The need for compliance with the size makes it necessary to concentrate all attention on one issue.

In fact, everything is built around the views of the author, the subsequent proof of their objectivity. Writing an essay involves the use of journalistic style, a departure from complex structures. At the same time, the use of colloquial words, jargon, everyday names should be avoided.

Using theses and arguments

In contrast to the essay, it is based on the formulation of certain theses, which are later required to be confirmed by several arguments. The main part has the form "thesis - arguments - new theses - new arguments". The ability to use a creative approach in presenting their views. You are not limited to any rigid framework, so you can argue your arguments in any form: examples, paradoxes, personal experience, a description of the situations you see. Allowed the presence of quotations, aphorism, statements that can attract the attention of the reader. Despite the absence of strict requirements for how to make an essay, all the arguments and theses presented should be subordinated to the answer to the main question. It is the hypothesis put in the introduction that must be proved, what should be written in the conclusions.

One of the most common mistakes is not sufficiently careful verification of the text. Therefore, it is best to relax a bit after finishing the work, and then read the text again or you can order an essay from essay for sale service.
